ABOUT ME

I am Azizbek, a young and experienced Full Stack developer. I am passionate about web and software development. I have extensive experience in backend development with Django and Laravel platforms, as well as frontend design using HTML && CSS and JavaScript. During my studies at the university, I implemented various projects independently and as a team, including implementing complex technical solutions such as real-time technologies, WebSockets, code isolation in Docker containers and automated scripting.

I strive to work effectively with my technical knowledge and problem solving skills. My main goal is to provide my clients with high-quality and modern solutions, as well as to continue growing by learning new technologies.
